Wednesday 21st, 6pm: Bluegrass History with Bill Malone

Bluegrass is an American art form that grew out of the traditional music styles of the working class South, and resonated with music lovers around the world.

Bill Malone, renowned country music historian, will discuss the sociological and cultural influences which informed bluegrass' development for audiences at four Dane County public libraries.

This event is a precursor to the upcoming bluegrass performance by Cork & Bottle on September 25th at 6pm here at the Marshall Library. Both events are sponsored by the Beyond the Page Endowment, the National Endowment of the Humanities, and the Madison Community Foundation.
